

In the fiscal year ending March 2024, Reliance Industries Limited reported consolidated revenue of ₹8,32,000 crore, marking a 10% year-on-year growth. The net income attributable to shareholders stood at ₹62,500 crore. EBITDA for the same period was reported at ₹1,30,000 crore, reflecting a strong performance across the energy and retail segments. The company's earnings per share (EPS) increased to ₹102.5 from ₹95 in the previous year. Total assets at the end of the fiscal year amounted to ₹12,70,000 crore, while total liabilities were ₹5,20,000 crore. Reliance also declared a final dividend of ₹9.50 per share, bringing the total dividend for the year to ₹18.50. Operating cash flow improved significantly due to better working capital management, while capital expenditure remained stable at ₹85,000 crore. Despite inflationary pressures and global uncertainty, the company maintained profitability due to operational efficiencies and digital services growth. Expenses on logistics and raw materials increased, but these were offset by strong growth in the consumer electronics and petrochemicals segments.